New hospital looks good on surface, but is really a pig pen

Editor, The News:

I read the Sept. 16th comment about our hospital here in Abbotsford.

I, too, am disgusted with the new hospital's cleanliness. I went in for a CT scan and the dressing rooms were dirty as well as having lot of marks on the walls.

The front entrance was wonderful, until you went into the elevators or on the floors. Then everything changed – dirt and grime all over.

I wonder who the cleaners are, and if they are not doing their job, then perhaps new cleaners should be hired.

What we have here in Abbotsford is a state-of-the-art hospital that looks like a pig pen. And this is my tax dollar that is paying these people who are not doing a good job.

Previously I was at the St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver. This hospital is years old and it is sparkling.

Maybe someone from the Abbotsford hospital should make a trip into Vancouver and look at these older hospitals and see how they are looked after.
