

 Click to Print

SAVE THIS | EMAIL THIS | Close

Hospital is nothing but a mess

Published: September 15, 2008 6:00 PM

Editor, The News:

I am now getting ready to make my 25th visit to our new hospital – lovely to look at, not so nice to be in one of the beds.

My husband has been in for 12 days with a bleeding ulcer. He went in with pain and breathing problems, but was coherent.

He went from that to being tied in a bed, couldn't talk properly (ranting), wearing diapers and being overdosed.

It's a surprise that no one noticed except myself and a lady visiting. She told them he was getting too many shots. They said that he was talking to himself before.

Clean? Not at all! The bed was covered in blood, urine and food. I cleaned it, and I showered him.

The urinals are made of cardboard. Do you think they break or leak?

The floor was wet-mopped once. The elevators were dirty.

The nurses are great – they're really trying – but they are overworked and are not supposed to be cleaning floors.

Everyone who I met in the halls said the same thing: Dirty!

Why?

Carol Griffin

Abbotsford

Find this article at:

http://www.bclocalnews.com/fraser_valley/abbynews/opinion/letters/28428974.html